

HEBREW 245-0

Israeli Society through Online News Media

Israel's press and broadcasters are many and varied, reflecting differences in language, political viewpoint and religious outlook. They play an important role in political, social and cultural life and in the way news and public opinion are disseminated and shared. This course engages students in learning about the importance of the Israeli press and how it reports current events and cultural topics for its diverse citizens. In-depth explorations of a variety of news topics will help students build a comprehensive vocabulary, explore the specialized language of Media Hebrew as well as begin to understand and respect alternative topics, ideas and diversity of views as expressed in the media sources.
